

ABOUT BALTIMORE PUBLIC MARKET CORPORATION

Avenue Market

A new vision is emerging for the Avenue Market located along historic Pennsylvania Avenue in the Upton neighborhood of West Baltimore. The vision is to establish the market as an economic hub for local African-American entrepreneurs focused on equitable and sustainable growth. The goal is to provide healthy food access and support local farmers while simultaneously working with entrepreneurs to scale their businesses and create career-path employment for local residents.

Lexington Market

Last, but certainly not least, is Lexington Market. Established in 1793, Lexington Market is the flagship of the Baltimore Public Markets. In 2020, we broke ground on a new $40 million Lexington Market. This project is one of the most transformational projects undertaken in downtown in recent decades. It will position Lexington Market as one of the premier public markets in the United States. All major players in the city and state, from the Governor to the Mayor, to the local business community, are supportive of the project and know its significance cannot be overstated. Historically, Lexington Market was the heart of the city and a meeting ground for people of all stripes. We believe that in many ways, as the market goes, so goes the city. To revive the market and again make it a central part of city life for all Baltimoreans, is a large step forward for all of Baltimore City.
